Additional Information

Merge database – gui – backend stuff together for the demo

Checkstyle and code coverage for last week were uploaded but then reverted again due to git issues, that's why it wasn't on gitlab but we did upload it before the meeting last Monday so is that still a problem?

maybe have the database connection be done via the server application? in that way the client is separated from all the information and only the server decides what the client can 'see'. (more secure)

If you merge please delete all old files that u had from the previous master branch so that we don't mess up the structure again
